

AGENDA

20 JUNE | LONDON

12.30pm Registration opens. Lunch and drinks served on arrival.

1.00pm

Alison Mollard, Business Development Manager - AJ Bell

Welcome, introduction and AJ Bell Investcentre platform update

Alison will outline what Luminary represents before taking a look at the AJ Bell business and current platform market. There will also be an update on the recent AJ Bell Investcentre platform developments and what is currently in the pipeline.

1.30pm

Claudia Calich, Fund Manager, Emerging Markets - M&G Investments

The challenges and opportunities of investing in Emerging Market debt

Claudia will provide an outlook for the investment opportunities on offer within Emerging Market debt markets - a very diverse but often overlooked asset class. Claudia's flexible approach allows her the opportunity to invest across different emerging markets, companies and currencies, in order to provide the potential for attractive long-term returns for clients.

2.00pm

Abraham Okunsanya, Founder and Director - FinalytiQ

Why I am a feminist and everyone should be!

The idea of Abraham as a feminist may seem counter-intuitive - he doesn't carry placards and has never joined a protest for anything in his life. But as a son, husband and dad, he wants to see an end to the subjugation of women in all its guises, particularly in financial services.

2.30pm

Coffee break

3.00pm

Lisa Webster, Technical Resources Consultant - AJ Bell

Pensions and divorce

Lisa will look at the options in respect of pensions on divorce. She will take a look at the practical issues, common pitfalls and the impact on protection.

3.30pm

Iona Bain, Founder - The Young Money Blog

Know your worth

Women throughout their young lives are influenced to be passive, compliant and deferential. This doesn't just cause financial inequality between the sexes - it creates profound stasis and dysfunction in public life too. But change is coming, and young women in financial services can lead the way. In her session Iona will argue why women can now revolutionise the industry and help close the UK's gender prosperity gap. She will draw on her experiences and real-life examples to highlight just how powerful women can be once they reject presenteeism, deference before unearned authority and groupthink. She will look at how women can get comfortable being uncomfortable, challenging accepted wisdom and entrenched biases to create a financial world far more cognisant of real people's needs, wants and desires. In turn, she will explore how we can all become cheerleaders for women's financial and career empowerment. By unlearning the damaging patterns of behaviour that hold them back, she argues women can be themselves - and radical game-changers in the process.

4.00pm

Corinne Hutton, Founder - Finding your Feet

Find your feet and make the most of the hand you've been dealt

Corinne Hutton spoke at Luminary in 2016 and shared her story of a second chance at life following a Sepsis infection and her subsequent double amputation. This year she returns to re-tell her story and also update us on her journey over the past two years, including her dilemma on her planned hand transplant, fighting to stop sepsis killing 44,000 per year and saving lives through her amputee charity. Corinne's truly inspirational story is like no other as she freely speaks about her lows and how she found the focus to pull herself back out of the dark hole she was dropped into.

4.30pm - 6.00pm Networking drinks
